Private Performance Feedback Reporting for Physicians: Guidance for Community Quality Collaboratives

By U S Department of Health Human Services, Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality

Createspace, United States, 2014. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 279 x 216 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Over the past decade, a growing body of research and online resources has emerged to provide guidance on effective practices for publicly reporting information on provider performance for consumers. These recommendations are for the most part evidence based and assume that an effective report is one that contains performance information that consumers understand and find both credible and relevant. In addition, information is conveyed in a way that makes it as easy as possible for consumers to use it to make good choices among providers. Another key audience for performance reporting is physicians themselves. Health plans and medical groups have sponsored private physician performance feedback reports for many years, with the intention of supporting internal quality improvement efforts as well as patient care management. More recently, multistakeholder community quality collaboratives, including roughly half of the Chartered Value Exchanges (CVEs) supported by the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality (AHRQ), have begun to produce some type of private report for physicians in parallel to their public report for consumers. These groups recognize that a single report designed for one...
