Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Critical Infrastructure Information Security systems are failing under persistent adversarial efforts because too many organizations still depend on antiquated legacy systems, un-cyber-hygienic personnel, and devices that lack security-by-design. The Frankensteined architectonic IoT microcosm of the prototypical critical infrastructure organization renders an infinite attack surface just begging to be exploited. Security is an afterthought, minimally implemented at the end of the development lifecycle, with the last dregs of the budget, in order to meet negligent check-box compulsory requirements. Meanwhile, adversaries are ever-evolving and always just one system away. We exist in an age of the weaponization of everything. This is not merely a cyberwar, we are now in a state of cyber-kinetic-meta war. There was no clear beginning and there will be no end. The pervasiveness of the Internet-of-Things, the ubiquity of artificial intelligence and machine learning systems, and the emergence of the machine-human convergence, where users are perpetually interconnected with vulnerable systems, only compounds the hyper-evolving attack surface. Data is turned against users in an information war where nation states and special interest groups use sold and stolen metadata from meta-hording internet service providers and social media companies to psycho-socio-economically manipulate entire populations. Dragnet surveillance capitalists such as Facebook, Comcast, ATT and Google, unfortunately, supply these manipulating adversaries with an endless supply of metadata for this information war against the American and European public. Metadata and electronic health records may prove far more powerful and more damning than the data stolen in prolific breaches like OPM. These data enabled the precision targeting of specific or niche user subsets, such as critical infrastructure owners and operators. Metadata is leveraged to psychographically compel targets to respond to malicious lures. Real news mixed with fake...
