Excerpt from Memorial Services for the Late Dean of the Medical College of Syracuse University, Dr. Gaylord Parsons Clark, Held at the John Crouse College, Syracuse, New York, Sunday Afternoon, October Sixth, Nineteen Hundred and Seven, Chancellor James R. Day Mr. Chancellor and Friends: This company of men and women would not have assembled to do honor to the life and character of an ordinary man. The ordinary man is committed to the earth, his elemental mother, and forgetfulness begins at the brink of the open grave. Except in the hearts of a few, he is thereafter but a memory that becomes fainter and fainter and is soon obliterated: as the widening circles that momentarily disturb the waters of a pool into whose depths a pebble has been cast quickly subside and leave the surface placid as before. But there have been men whose lives have come into such close contact with so many, whose characters have been so pure and inspiring, whose acts have been so true and without the shadow of disappointment, and whose influence for the betterment of their kind and of their community has been so far reaching that they can never be forgotten and whom generations who have come after them have delighted to honor. All histories contain the names of such. The world has its universal heroes-men to whom it has been given to do great things for the good of all humanity.
