But they were all heroes, and we owe them a debt of gratitude we can never sufficiently pay. They punished the enemy so awfully that 1 Dana to Stanton, Chattanooga, September 20th. if our forces had remained on the ground, it is the opinion of General Thomas, as well as of many others less judicious and reserved than he, that the enemy must have retreated. But Thomas was not sure that he could get mp supplies of ammunition in season, and retired accordingly. Our loss in this battle was about fourteen thousand killed, wounded, and missing, and forty pieces of artillery. But we repulsed the enemy even after one-half our line of battle was dissolved, and saved Chattanooga. The conduct of McCook and Crittenden in leaving their commands is to be investigated by a court of inquiry, and...
